

What is National Socialism?

National Socialism is a worldview that is based upon the application of Natural Law to the individual, the family, the economy, and the nation. Natural Law is the organic expression of Truth found within all of nature.

The nation within National Socialism is made up of a people who share the same language, heritage, culture, customs, and blood. This People's Community believes in sacrifice, hard work, and harmony between all members of the nation. We totally reject the divisive ideologies that currently dominate the Western world.

Today women and men are pitted against one another through the ideologies of feminism and misogyny. The classes wage never-ending conflict against each other as capitalists use and abuse the workers, and communist agitators seek to divide the worker from what is best for his extended and immediate family.

National Socialism instead stands for justice, fraternity, and teamwork for all of our citizens. We are one extended family, bound together by history, blood, and a shared future.

We seek to preserve and advance our culture, traditions, and our genetic inheritance based upon the principles of love and duty for our Faith, Family, and Folk. This can be summed up in the famous Fourteen Words "We must secure the existence of our people and a future for White children."

What about the political system?

One of the most misunderstood principles of National Socialism is that of the political system. In the current American regime, the endless democratic process leaves power and thus the loyalty of the politicians in the hands of those with considerable financial power.

Today the average American has less political power than ever before, while a small oligarchy of businessmen, bankers, and foreign interests are able to buy and sell both mainstream political parties. The mass media works with financial capital to control the messages that are presented and divide the population into voting blocs. Such policies turn us against each other. Our pockets are fleeced by Wall Street as our blood is shed in the endless wars for Zionist and capitalist interests. We are pushed ever increasingly into minority status throughout the entire European world.

The founder of the Iron Guard, Corneliu Codreanu, once said “A people becomes aware of its existence when it becomes aware of its entirety, not only of its component parts and their individual interests.” We are not Republicans, Democrats, Libertarians, or Green Party members; we as White men and women are part of the same extended family and thus must work together as one in order to address the challenges of building and managing a healthy and just society.

National Socialism believes that each member of the nation should have a say in how our government is run and decisions are made, not special interest groups and multinational corporations. Our people should be in charge of our own affairs. We shall give power back to the people, by breaking the chains that hold us in bondage, liberating us to work together as one to ensure a future for our children.

How do you define who is ‘White’?

The European race is made up of a large number of smaller ethnic communities with distinct languages, cultures, religious expressions, and traditions. Those who are Mediterranean, Celtic, Nordic, Slavic and so on, are part of the shared European race, the peoples who settled, developed, and built what we now call Western Civilization. From the Iberian peninsula to the steppes of the Russian Federation and beyond, we are one large extended family.

Here in the United States, Europeans from all European nations came and formed a new distinct ethnic identity, a White American identity and culture that was unique throughout the entire globe.

If you are a descendant of the native European peoples and believe in our struggle, you are part of our extended family and have a place in this struggle. As former political prisoner David Lane said “If someone looks White, acts White, fights White, then until their actions prove otherwise, they are our Folk.”

Are you American nationalists?

The defining spirit of America is a push for freedom, liberty, and sovereignty. From the original Founders to the brave patriots like Robert E. Lee and Thomas Stonewall Jackson of the Confederate States of America there is nothing more American than throwing off the shackles of a government that no longer represents you or your people, instead begin building a new government to be a government of the people, by the people.

It is clear that White people in America are not represented and our demographic displacement into minority status is almost complete. The politicians in Washington, Republican and Democrat, only encourage our increased dispossession with every passing year.

We must overcome our conservative instincts and sentimental ties which bind us to the regime in Washington, just as our forefathers overcame their sentimental ties to the crown in London. Men like George Washington originally served in the military for the British government, but saw the abuses of his people by the central authority were too much, and thus changed world history through creating a new nation and a new system.

While this government may have at one point represented the noble ideals of our past generations, it now only poses an existential threat to our future generations. We didn't leave America, America left us, and it's time to initiate the cultural and social secession from this nation which necessarily precedes political secession.

A response to nearly every single problem we have in our nation—from street crime to anti-White governmental policies, to attacks on our sovereignty and faith—can be answered in one simple phrase “If White people had a country of our own, this wouldn't be happening.” It is time for us to build that country.

What do you think about other races?

General Leon Degrelle famously said “National Socialist racialism was not against the other races, it was for its own race. It aimed at defending and improving its race, and wished that all other races did the same for themselves.”

The way toward world peace and prosperity is found in the principles of Natural Law and self governance. Multiculturalism, globalism, communism, and capitalism cause conflict within nations, but also between different racial groups and communities.

While the primary consideration of a White National Socialist is with his or her own people, the same can be said of an Arab National Socialist in the various Ba'athist movements in the Middle East, or an Indigenous nationalist in Latin America fighting for his community's best interests.

We believe strongly in encouraging our people to reach our full potential, but we desire the same for every other group of people. We oppose all forms of colonialism, imperialism, or restriction of the rights of peoples to live and govern themselves as they see fit.

We don't hate blended families or people of mixed heritage, our desire is simply to have the same right they have; to exist.

Following the example of Commander George Lincoln Rockwell, who supported the Nation of Islam in promoting racial empowerment and development for the American Black community, we look with respect and shared purpose towards those of other ethnic communities who wish to see a free world made up of sovereign peoples.

What are your thoughts on Homosexuality?

National Socialists strive to build and cultivate life, life that is wholesome and that follows the principles of Natural Law. Each member of the People's Community is responsible for promoting what is good and wholesome. It is the duty of the State to protect the innocent and the morals of the nation.

We oppose homosexuality because it is a deviation from Natural Law, a parody of the healthy relationship between a man and a woman that is built around self sacrifice and the creation and nurturing of the next generation.

What role does religion play in your organization and worldview?

Religion and spirituality has been a part of the human experience from the moment of our creation. Man has always pushed for a connection with the powers of the incorporeal world. Religion is a key aspect of both personal and national revival, a moral foundation for us to build our new world upon, and values for our society to live and thrive on.

To simply distill National Socialism down to biology is to miss what the movement is truly about, a revival of our people, in mind, body, and spirit.

On the issue of religion, political prisoner David Lane said "Whatever People's perception of God, or Gods, or the motive Force of the Universe might be, they can hardly deny that Nature's Law are the work of, and therefore the intent of, that Force...Nature evidences the divine plan, for the natural world is the work of the force or the intelligence men call God."

To understand Natural Law, you must understand the Creator of Natural Law. The values of fidelity, honor, sacrifice, and love are not abstractions or things thought up to be convenient things to tell our children. These values are the very foundation of Providence's desire for how we should live and die for one another.

Commander Rockwell said "National Socialism, as a PHILOSOPHY, embodies the eternal urge found in all living things – indeed in all creation- toward a higher level of existence- toward perfection – toward God." To remove the Divine or give it a backseat in our movement, is to guarantee our defeat, even if every political objective was accomplished.

National Socialism does not take a particular confession of Christianity or religious practice as its belief system, instead working to cultivate a healthy morality and strong moral foundation for the nation and the people. In the traditional European view of symphony, the Church and the State work hand-in-hand, in their own particular sphere, to care for the people. On this subject Adolf Hitler said "We were convinced that the people need and requires this faith. We have therefore undertaken the fight against the atheistic movement, and that not merely with a few theoretical declarations: we have stamped it out."

The duty of the State is to fulfill the commandments of the National Socialist worldview to care for the physical needs of the people. These duties include ensuring economic justice for the workers, having medical care for the sick, providing for the elderly, investing in good infrastructure, having a healthy society for families to raise their children in, keeping the nation safe, and securing a space for religious expression and devotion.

National Socialists on an individual level have a right to not believe in a specific religion or religion at all, with Rudolf Hess announcing in 1933 that "No National Socialist may suffer any detriment on the ground that he does not profess any particular faith or confession or on the ground that he does not make any religious profession at all."

What do you think about feminism and gender relations?

Our mission as National Socialists must be to return men and women to their traditional roles, this does not strip them of their rights and position, but lifts both genders up to their proper place.

Femininity is to be treasured and respected, without good mothers and wives, every military, political, or social victory that men win will be destroyed by the march of time, and demographics. We must have healthy families, and that takes empowering women to once again be mothers, wives, and caregivers.

We must set good examples for women not only in our movement, but in society at large. This means men must live and abide by honorable principles, embracing true masculinity of being protectors, providers, warriors, and defenders of the family and nation. Women must also be put forward to present a good example to other women, especially young women.

The solution to feminism and the gender problems of the West is not to push women down, or placate the feminist ideology; instead it is found in empowering women to their traditional role. There are no women's rights or men's rights in National Socialism, only duties. As Adolf Hitler said "There is no fight for man which is not also a fight for woman, and no fight for woman which is not also a fight for man. We know no men's rights or women's rights. We recognize only one right for both sexes: a right which is also a duty- to live, work, and fight together for the nation."

What is the difference between National Socialism and International Socialism?

There are few words as misunderstood by the American public as the word "Socialism." To many conservatives and those on the supposed Right, the term conjures up thoughts about the Soviet Union, Communism and John Birch Society rhetoric of the Cold War. Everything in America that Republicans don't like is deemed Socialist, at least by the pundits on Fox News.

What the conservatives do not understand is that Socialism is a natural element in any organic and folkish society. There are two forms of Socialism, International Socialism and National Socialism, while they share the same description, they are two radically different ideologies.

Under International Socialism, the work and resources of the nation are stolen by usurious bankers and companies who do not care for the well being of the nation, only increasing their profit margins.

International Socialism always ends up serving a small oligarchy of elites both on the national and then the international level. Dr. Joseph Goebbels explained this when he said "Socialism gains its true form only through a total fighting brotherhood with the forward-striving energies of a newly awakened nationalism. Without nationalism it is nothing, a phantom, a mere theory, a castle in the sky, a book. With it it is everything, the future, freedom, the fatherland!"

National Socialism, which can be both the ideology of the National Socialist German Workers' Party or another version of Socialism focused around the people and the nation, is based entirely on putting the nation, as a People's Community, ahead of any and all international interests.

A nationalist view of Socialism has been found in everything from the Kingdoms of Medieval Europe to the Fascist movements of the 20th century. Only the radical individualists led by Jewish thinkers like Ayn Rand in the modern era have pushed an idea that members of a folk do not have a duty and a tie to help support their countrymen.

Socialism has become an artificial and scary -ism in American discourse, but nothing in political science is more organic and friendly than investment in the health and wealth of one's own people.

According to Sir Oswald Mosley, "If you love our country you are nationalist, and if you love our people you are a Socialist." It is not enough to fight for your ethnic Identity, you must also have an economic view that fights for true Social Justice and liberates the folk from the bonds of slavery to capitalism and communism, the two ideologies of the globalist elites.

National Socialism encourages hard work and innovation, and a right to the fruits of one's labor. A National Socialist society ensures economic justice and fairness for working families and a strong social safety net for those who need it.

What does 'White Power' mean to you?

The term 'White Power' represents the push for economic, social, and political empowerment for White people here in the United States and throughout the European world.

Each and every people should have power in their community and nation. Under the current capitalist system, both White communities and communities of Color are being deprived of this fundamental right and pitted against one another. Capitalism forces the working class of all nations into a struggle for the scraps off of the tables of the bourgeoisie.

Instead of promoting a reactionary position against People of Color, the National Socialist Movement positively affirms White identity, White liberation, and White empowerment while standing in firm opposition to the true enemies of all people; the international capitalist system and the forces of globalism.

We fight for the White community, while also promoting cooperation and shared interest with People of Color who are fighting against the same globalist, capitalist and imperialist system.

As an example, we support organizers within the Black community: to oppose gentrification in traditionally Black neighborhoods, who desire to have lawmakers that represent their interests, businesses owned by members of their own community, Black teachers and role models for Black youth, and to celebrate their culture and history.

Savitri Devi said on this topic "I'm for a multi-racial world in which each race keeps to itself, in harmony with the other races. Like in a garden, you have flower beds of roses and flowerbeds of carnations and irises and different other flowers. They don't intermarry. They stay separate, and each one has its beauty...Respect the man of noble races other than your own, who carries out, in a different place, a combat parallel to yours - to ours. He is your ally. He is our ally, be he at the other end of the world."

Liberation is not a zero sum game in which in order for one group to prosper, other groups (other than the rich and powerful) must lose. We are uncompromising in our struggle for our people and the best interests of all future generations, but we hold out a hand of friendship and solidarity towards other communities, looking forward to building a new world of sovereign nations together.

White Power will come when we assert ourselves and our will upon the bourgeoisie and relegate them to the trash bin of history, leading towards our people and the entire world being free, fair, peaceful and prosperous.

Is National Socialism a Right-Wing or 'Far Right' ideology?

National Socialism rejects the failed Left/Right paradigm in favor of support policies that work, to cultivate life and benefit our people and the planet.

From the Right we take a belief in tradition, the support of religion in our society, support for the family, the understanding of the importance of the Folkish National Community and our traditions; while at the same time rejecting the conservative and reactionary mindset of the Right.

From the Left we take the belief in social justice, a belief in science and how it can benefit our society, protection of the environment, economic justice, and a belief in the progress of society towards reaching new and greater heights; while rejecting the Left's rejection of gender differences, colorblindness, and the rejection of the nation State.

Jose Antonio Primo De Rivera, founder of the Spanish Falange, said that “the Right is the attempt to perpetuate an economic system even though it be an unjust one, and the Left is at heart the desire to overthrow an economic organization even though in its overthrow many good things should be ruined.” Instead of choosing the lesser of two evils or throwing the baby out with the bathwater, National Socialism believes in taking the best of both worlds in order to promote maximum benefit and justice for our entire National Community.

We are not conservatives, and in fact entirely reject conservatism. There is nothing left in the United States to conserve on an institutional level. Our culture has degenerated, capitalism has exploited us for centuries, our political and economic power has been stolen, our institutions have betrayed us, and we stand as orphans in the land that our forefathers died to give us. National Socialism is not defined as “The Republican Agenda plus opposing international Jewry” as some would accuse, instead we are revolutionaries against this entire capitalist and globalist system. We desire to build a new world, one where men and women can be broken free from our current bondage, and enter a new age of progress and ingenuity.

We are not Leftists because we understand that harmony can only come when a nation is made up of the same people, the lives of the innocent are protected, and the genders compliment one another in their traditional roles. The Left seeks to tear down not just this corrupt system, but thousands of years of tradition, identity, religious belief, and culture.

Why don't you use the swastika?

It is important to note that National Socialism as a philosophy is not defined by the Nationalsozialistische Deutsche Arbeiterpartei from Germany, as much as we find inspiration and admiration from the NSDAP.

Savitri Devi said “This world-wide appeal of Adolf Hitler shows sufficiently that, although in its modern form it originated in Germany—and could not possibly have originated anywhere else—the National Socialist doctrine transcends Germany. ... it is the everlasting truth about the laws of life and the evolution of human races.”

National Socialism is not a German phenomenon, or even a purely European phenomenon, it is an organic understanding of Natural Law and its application to human society.

Commander George Lincoln Rockwell famously utilized the swastika and the traditional brown shirt of the Sturmabteilung as a tactic to raise awareness about the principles of National Socialism. Commander Rockwell understood that there was a media blackout on pro-White perspectives, and no Internet at the time to directly reach the masses, so he had to find a way to force the hand of the media corporations. Utilizing his upbringing under parents who were vaudeville performers, Commander Rockwell baited the media with what appeared to be an outrageous presentation, in order to then take that opportunity to present his worldview to the masses.

After reaching critical mass of developing the American Nazi Party, Commander Rockwell retired use of the swastika, German specific phrases such as “Sieg Heil”, and other elements; in order to utilize his base to create a true and organic American National Socialist political movement. The use of the swastika was a tactic, it was not the movement by any means.

There is a confusion among the media and even some of the movement about the use of the swastika. Historically there was a legion of Fascist and National Socialist movements, all creating and utilizing their own unique symbols. The revolution cannot be exported, it must be cultivated within the hearts and spirits of the people, in order to be a true expression of the worldview.

The Blueshirts in Ireland, the Blackshirts in Italy and England, the Iron Guard in Romania, the Falange in Spain, the Arrow Cross Party in Hungary, the Hlinka Guard in Slovakia, and the Arab Ba’athists are all examples of Fascist or National Socialist movements that were unique to their nation, while still ascribing to the underlying principles shared by all fellow movements.

Our Party gains inspiration from not only Adolf Hitler, but Corneliu Codreanu, Jose Antonio, Sir Oswald Mosley, and a whole host of other Fascist and National Socialist leaders and thinkers from history.

In the modern age, comrades from Golden Dawn in Greece, the Nordic Resistance Movement in the Nordic countries, and other movements also provide inspiration. These movements have their own symbols, their own specific party platforms to answer the needs of their people, and their own organic development.

The National Socialist Movement is an American based movement, to fight for the future of our people, and to create a National Socialist State for our future generations to live in.

We honor all those who came before us, many of whom gave their lives for National Socialism and a free world, by carrying our own flag aloft and building a new world.

We are part of a worldwide and historical struggle, but we are not defined by any other political movement or historical event, only the values of National Socialism. The NSM exists to answer the needs of our people, and to provide them a real voice both politically and socially.

What form of National Socialists are NSM members?

The National Socialist Movement follows the principles of National Socialism and the belief in National Socialism is the only ideological requirement for membership.

Within our ranks we have many who identify as following the traditions of Adolf Hitler, but also many who are inspired by Legionarism, Falangism, and other historical traditions.

We are non-factional when it comes to demanding following an example of one historical movement or tradition, as we are our own unique example of National Socialism here in the United States and in the modern age.
