Katyn

"Defiance", yet another movie about Jewish victimhood and heroism opened in 1800 US theaters last week. This story of Jewish partisans fighting Nazis adds to a growing Holocaust film genre that includes Sophie's Choice, Shindler's List and The Pianist. But one incredible Jewish story of genocide continues to elude Hollywood. This is the execution of 20,000 Polish Officer POW's, (devout Roman Catholics who represented much of the Polish elite,) by the Bolshevik Jewish-led NKVD in the Katyn forest in 1940.

Why has Hollywood ignored this story? My opinion is that, with six degrees of separation, Hollywood, (and indeed America) is ultimately run by the spiritual descendants of these murderers. Thus we are brainwashed to ignore genocides that don't fit the Nazi-Jew paradigm. Movies are essential to this programming. Part of an ongoing psychological war on the Christian European majority, we are made to identify with minorities. If we object, we are counted as Nazis. I will expand later when I briefly review Hollywood's current fare.

Andrej Wajda, 82, Poland's most celebrated film director, lost his father at Katyn. In 2008, Wajda made a movie about this genocide and its effect on the victims' families. Financed by Polish TV, the film, "Katyn," was a major artistic and commercial success in Poland. It was nominated for an Oscar for Best Foreign Film in 2008, but still has not found wide distribution outside Poland. It didn't win the Oscar. The award went to a Jewish Holocaust movie, "The Counterfeiters," a "true story" from Germany. It described the moral dilemma faced by a Jewish master-counterfeiter forced to forge British and US currency. ("Should I sabotage this process?") I saw this movie. It is an enjoyable piece of propaganda which helps the audience identify with Jews. In real life, I doubt if the hero had any such moral qualms. Even in the film, he filled his own pockets.

KATYN I haven't seen the movie but I did stumble across information that illustrates why this is the stuff of which epics are made. First, some background from Wikipedia: "Since Poland's conscription system required every non-exempt university graduate to become a reserve officer, the Soviets were able to round up much of the Polish intelligentsia. Those who died at Katyn included an admiral, two generals, 24 colonels, 79 lieutenant colonels, 258 majors, 654 captains, 17 naval captains, 3,420 NCOs, seven chaplains, three landowners, a prince, 43 officials, 85 privates, and 131 refugees. Also among the dead were 20 university professors; 300 physicians; several hundred lawyers, engineers, and teachers; and more than 100 writers and journalists as well as about 200 pilots. In all, the NKVD executed almost half the Polish officer corps." In 1945, Maurice Shainberg was the Assistant to KGB Col. Grigory Zaitzev who was the Commandant of the main Katyn work camp. In his book, "Breaking from the KGB," (1986) Shainberg, a Polish Jew, tells how he discovered Zaitzev's Katyn diary in the safe. Shainberg had misgivings about Communism and identified with his fellow Poles. He took great personal risks to copy sections of the diary. The Zaitzev Diary was dynamite because the Soviets always claimed the Nazis had committed the war crime.

The diary appears authentic except for one major discrepancy. Zaitzev pretends the slaughter was necessitated

THE ZAITZEV DIARY by lack of transport to remove the prisoners in advance of the Nazi onslaught in June 1941. In fact, Stalin and Beria gave the order to murder the Poles in early March and the executions took place in April and May 1940. Only 4250 were actually shot in Katyn forest. The remainder were executed in prisons elsewhere. Many were taken out in barges on the White Sea and drowned. Otherwise, the diary describes how the Soviets tried to indoctrinate and intimidate the Poles into betraying their culture and their country (as the Western-elite has done today), by forming a puppet class in a future Soviet-dominated Poland. The Poles refused and that is the reason they were slaughtered.

When Zaitzev got his assignment, he was warned that the Poles were all "educated religious fanatics" always singing patriotic songs and hymns with their chaplain. Zaitzev was confident he could teach them to "pray to a new God." The prisoners worked cutting trees from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. In the evening they boycotted the indoctrination sessions. They had no desire to assist in building the future Soviet Poland. One officer explained: "As a Pole I know my nation. None of us have the desire to dictate to other people, and we don't want other people to dictate to us. We are neither a Fascist or a Communist nation, but a devoutly Catholic one." Once during a speech, the Polish Army Chaplain Jozwiak lifted up the crucifix he wore and began to chant a prayer. The prisoners followed suit. That night, Jozwiak was taken to the Interrogation Chamber. "The use of electrical currents on Father Jozwiak's eyes and body didn't help. Nor was the Chinese method successful, where the prisoner was stripped from the waist down and forced to sit over an open cage of starving rats. We couldn't allow the priest to go back to the other prisoners in the condition he was left in, so we finished him off." (Shainberg, p. 165)

The NKVD thought the priest's example would have a sobering effect on the POW's but instead they curtailed their work. The NKVD retaliated by decreasing rations which made the prisoners too weak to work. When the NKVD started shooting prisoners who didn't work; the others turned on the guards with their axes and 192 Poles were shot. Now the Poles were more defiant than ever. When a collaborator lectured to them, they began to chant a prayer: "We Polish soldiers and prisoners of the Soviets have been brought here to foreign lands to die. We beg of you, Mother of God, to take care of our nation...Save us from German and Soviet imprisonment. We are offering ourselves as a sacrifice for the independence of our fatherland..." Of course this is the kind of self sacrifice and patriotism that our Masters don't want us to see. "Our task was impossible," Zaitzev wrote. "People who have never met these Poles will not understand how difficult it was to change their attitude toward us. No beating or abuse would make them stop their singing. They are a hard and proud people. Every day they get physically weaker but their anger and hatred increased." Polish historian Krzysztof Siwek tells me that Poland has declared April 13 a National Day of Rememberance of the Katyn martyrs. "A joint Polish-Russian commission was formed to develop an official position of both sides. Most of controversies remain unresolved. Russians fear that admitting fully to the crime against humanity would allow the victims' families to demand compensations and other penalties as in the case of Germany."

The goal of Illuminati Jewish bankers and their Masonic gentile collaborators is to meld the world's population into a single servant class in a "New World Order." This requires the destruction of the four legs of human identity: race, religion, nation and family. The Illuminati bankers established the USSR as a precursor to the New World Order. The execution of the Polish elite was necessary to the long term plan. The Illuminati are Luciferian. They wish to substitute their rule for God's natural and spiritual (moral) order. They need to destroy the Western European Christian heterosexual middle class to fulfill their agenda. Culture is a function of money and the Illuminati control credit. Thus our culture maintains a conspiracy of silence about the gradual subversion of Western Civilization by its own traitorized elite. Instead the focus, in movies for e.g., is on minorities. Clint Eastwood's "Gran Torino" is about a redneck who learns to love Asian immigrants kids. Oscar nominated "Slumdog Millionaire" is about Bombay street kids. Sean Penn's "Milk" is about a crusader for homosexual rights. Oscar nominated "The Reader" combines paedophilia and German guilt for the Holocaust. "Revolutionary Road" presents a negative view of marriage and the 1950's, a period when the nuclear family recovered. (I liked this movie, but not the message.) "Doubt" is about homosexuality in the Catholic Church. French Best Foreign Language nominee "The Class" is about immigrant youths and how lovable they are. And on it goes, movies are propaganda for the Illuminati agenda. When the movie is about white Americans, as in "Benjamin Button," no collective identity can be upheld, no universals revealed. Life must be literally turned upside down, in this case reversed from old to young, before it has any interest for the screenwriter, Eric Roth. This diverting but ultimately vacuous movie is a triumph of make-up. It has nothing important to say to Americans at this critical moment. So there should be no surprise that a film about Christian martyrs and patriots coming from an anachronism called a nation like Poland will be quietly swept under the carpet by Hollywood. Heaven forbid that the sheep figure out that the same fate may await them.
Artist's lawn gnome Hitler salute sparks investigation

German prosecutors said Thursday they had launched an enquiry into whether a garden gnome with its right arm raised in a Hitler salute in a Nuremberg art gallery is against the law. "The investigation is ongoing and people are being interviewed," spokesman for the public prosecutors office in the southern city Wolfgang Traeg told AFP. Hitler salutes and Nazi symbols have been illegal in Germany since World War II, but Traeg said that investigators may establish that the garden gnome is in fact ridiculing the Third Reich. "It is also a question of art a bit... and a garden gnome," Traeg said. "It will also depend on what the artist and the owners of the gallery have to say for themselves about the whole thing."

The artist in question is German-born Ottmar Hoerl, who has designed numerous exhibitions and projects in public spaces including the large blue euro sculpture in front of the European Central Bank in Frankfurt.

"I was a bit surprised that this gnome has produced a reaction like this. Until now everyone has understood it. " Hoerl told AFP, calling his artwork "an image of the German master race." "I view (this investigation) with a certain irony."

He said he has been making gnomes for the past nine years, and put them on display for the first time in Belgium in 2008 in an exhibition called "Dance With The Devil." Others have take place in Austria and Aschaffenburg, Germany. Since 2005 he has been president of the Academy for Fine Arts in Nuremberg. The Bavarian city has particular resonance when it comes to World War II, as it was the scene of huge rallies by Hitler and also where trials of Nazis took place after Germany's defeat in 1945.

Bernie Madoff Wasn’t the Only Jewish Swindler

One of the more fascinating news events in the past year has been the revelation of the existence of dozens of “mini-Madoffs.” It seems that there is no shortage of Jewish swindlers ripping off investors of all races with scams and Ponzi schemes of varying slickness. The Jewish Telegraph agency reports: "A South African-born Jewish businessman accused of defrauding hundreds of investors is rejecting the comparison with Bernie Madoff… Barry Tannenbaum, 43, who now lives in Sydney, issued a statement to the media on Friday saying he categorically rejected as conjecture and speculation the ‘wild allegations’ that he swindled more than 300 local and foreign investors out of about $1.2 billion. The alleged scam is being described as South Africa’s biggest corporate fraud… Tannenbaum is alleged to have built a pyramid scheme in which he allegedly offered investors up to 200 percent annual returns.”

Always remember that if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is. Most people would be much better off if they just shopped around for the best FDIC-insured interest rate (which would be about 3 percent today or maybe a little higher for a six month CD). The article notes “Local and international media have likened him to Madoff, the American businessman who pleaded guilty to defrauding investors of some $65 billion — the largest investor fraud by a single person. The High Court in Pretoria agreed last week to allow the appointment of a liquidator.”

The Jews have always been past masters of the international financial stock and investment scam. They have been since the time the French branch of the Rothschild family set up a private messenger network including fire beacons, fast horses in relays, and chartered sailing ships to convey news of the outcome of the battle of Waterloo to England three days before the official military despatches from Wellington arrived, thus enabling the London Rothschilds to make a killing on the British stock market. Today, the Jews have even more sophisticated information systems among themselves. They pass around key information, that they share with each other, but withhold from us lowly Gentiles. Much of this information could be considered criminal “insider trading.” The two worst offenders for insider trading of course were the Jews, Ivan Boesky and Michael Milken.

The Ponzi scheme is the ultimate Jewish financial ploy, robbing Peter to pay Paul, and then when the bottom falls out, Hymie and Izzy slip away into the night with carpetbags full of cash to Israel or whatever refuge seems best to shield them from the law and from their outraged victims. I notice that the alleged South African Tannenbaum now lives in Australia. Along with Canada, that seems to be the favorite bolt hole of the Jews these days. Maybe they’re afraid the US will suffer a total economic collapse in the near future.
Schmidt slammed for stolen limo

In Germany, Health minister Ulla Schmidt faced a barrage of criticism from political rivals Monday after her official vehicle was stolen while she was visiting Spain. Schmidt was visiting Alicante on vacation and had paid for her personal airfare there. As she also planned to attend some events in Spain in her official capacity and had her driver make the 2,387 kilometre journey from Berlin the €90,000 Mercedes S-Class to ferry her around. No details are currently available about the circumstances of the theft.

Political opponents have seized on the affair. Georg Schirmbeck, a budget expert for the Christian Democratic Union, which currently shares power in an uneasy coalition with Schmidt’s Social Democratic Party, denounced Schmidt in an interview published the daily Neue Osnabrücker Zeitung. “As health minister Schmidt’s time in office has already expired, it’s not necessary to call for her resignation. But having made such a hash of things, it’s clear she’s the wrong woman to be in the cabinet,” Schirmbeck said.

Patrick Döring, a parliamentarian from the opposition Free Democratic Party, which hopes to replace the SDP in a coalition with the CDU, joined in criticising Schmidt. “I can’t imagine that the German embassy in Madrid wasn’t in the position to be able to give the minister a ride to one or more speeches,” Döring said in an interview with the daily Neue Presse.

Schmidt's spokeswoman said Sunday she intended to use the car only for official functions such as a meeting on Monday with German pensioners living in Spain. The spokeswoman said Schmidt had been vacationing in the area for years and had privately rented a vehicle for her personal travel, according to a report in Monday’s Tagesspiegel newspaper.

The incident is sure to become fodder in the campaign leading up to national elections on September 27. Schmidt's SPD is struggling to gain traction with voters and is far behind in the polls.

European Parliament’s law of unintended consequences

On 14th July the newly elected Members of the European Parliament took their seats in Strasbourg for the opening session of the new Parliament. Throughout the Parliament’s history the honor of chairing this opening session has always fallen to the oldest MEP, but Europe’s rulers desperately changed the rules a few months ago, when it became apparent that the oldest MEP this year would be the controversial French nationalist Jean-Marie Le Pen. …Yet although Le Pen was indeed re-elected when the democratic dice were thrown last month, the oldest MEP turned out to be the former Italian Prime Minister Ciriaco de Mita, who thus misses out on an honor which would have capped his years of blameless service to Europe’s political establishment.

De Mita had miraculously survived decades of close involvement with the most scandal-ridden party in the democratic world – Italy’s Christian Democrats – but has now been punished for someone else’s thought-crime. The political egg aimed at Le Pen hit de Mita (born four months earlier) full in the face! Le Pen, leader of France’s Front National and an MEP since 1984, was given a three month suspended prison sentence for daring to describe the German occupation of France during the 1940s as “not particularly inhuman.” He had earlier been condemned for describing the “Holocaust” as a “detail of history”. Such sentiments are now prohibited in France under the notorious Gayssot Law. But as Europe’s politicians have discovered, once one begins to change traditional rules of debate it can have unexpected consequences!
Evidence of a Lake found on Mars

You pretty much have to be 45 or older to have a clear memory of the great days when we first landed on the moon in 1969. A total of twelve White American men walked on the moon. Three of them have since died, and soon the remaining nine will start dying of old age. Eventually we will be down to just one surviving astronaut who walked on the moon, and then he will die —most likely with no new manned moon missions on NASA’s agenda. Liberals completely took over the US government in the 1970s, and our nation has been on a steady downhill trend in terms of science, space exploration and all the other fields that White men excel in. Instead, we have opened the floodgates to the Third World, created a false religion out of “Diversity” and done everything possible to demonize White men and their accomplishments.

This story about discovering water on Mars demonstrates what Aryan mankind is capable of achieving even in our present decayed and debilitated state. Anything to do with space exploration is part of the long and proud history of the White race. A news article reports “A University of Colorado at Boulder research team has discovered the first definitive evidence of shorelines on Mars, an indication of a deep, ancient lake there and a finding with implications for the discovery of past life on the Red Planet… Estimated to be more than 3 billion years old, the lake appears to have covered as much as 80 square miles and was up to 1,500 feet deep — roughly the equivalent of Lake Champlain bordering the United States and Canada, said CU-Boulder Research Associate Gaetano Di Achille, who led the study. The shoreline evidence, found along a broad delta, included a series of alternating ridges and troughs thought to be surviving remnants of beach deposits ‘This is the first unambiguous evidence of shorelines on the surface of Mars,’ said Di Achille. ‘The identification of the shorelines and accompanying geological evidence allows us to calculate the size and volume of the lake, which appears to have formed about 3.4 billion years ago.’

Now think a moment, how incredible this is. In the midst of the collapse of our society, where the economy is being destroyed by nationalization; where our infrastructure is crumbling away and our bridges are collapsing while our power grid fizzes out; when our borders have more or less collapsed; when illiterate White youth are running around with baseball caps on backwards and wearing baggy pants, there are still some of us looking beyond this wretched world and upward to the stars. It is helpful to remind ourselves sometimes that some young White people do have their heads on straight and are going into science and engineering, and they are working miracles every day in the fields of research and technology and medicine. The money for space exploration is decreasing and the effort to go to Mars is being sabotaged by incompetent engineers from India, Peru and Pakistan who are being hired by aerospace companies, which place Diversity and racial quotas before competency.

The German people are not a warlike nation. It is a soldierly one, which means it does not want a war, but does not fear it. It loves peace but also loves its honor and freedom. Adolph Hitler 1936
The Meet and Greet in Tupelo MS was a Great Success.

These dedicated and true National Socialists set up and ran a meet and greet event in Gum Tree Park in Tupelo, Mississippi. On June 27 they after putting out flyers, they set up the event in the park which turned out to be a great event.

Another Republican, Governor Mark Sanford Self-Destructs in a sex scandal

What on earth is it with Republican politicians? I hate to say this, but they’re getting even worse than Democrats in restraining their bizarre and often perverted lusty desires. Granted, the Dems are no slouches in the sexual sleaze department. They’ve got a long line of role models for perversion including former New York governor Elliot Spitzer; Dick Morris, the drunken porcine Teddy Kennedy and his problems with women and water, the inexcusable degenerate Barney Frank and of course the monarch and exemplar of all middle-aged frat boys on spring break, Bill Clinton. The Republicans have Mark Foley and his Gay text messages to young Congressional page boys, Rudy Giuliani in drag, Newt Gingrich and his career-ending sex scandal, Larry “Twinkle Toes” Craig and now this moron Mark Sanford from South Carolina flying off at taxpayer’s expense to some babe in Argentina. It’s bad enough these politicians have outsourced our manufacturing jobs; now their outsourcing their skanks.

Politico.com reports: “South Carolina GOP Gov. Mark Sanford admitted Wednesday to an affair and resigned his position as chair of the Republican Governor’s Association following a strange week in which the governor dropped off the grid and could not be located. Later in the day, Sanford’s wife Jenny released a statement saying the couple had begun a trial separation two weeks ago… ‘I have been unfaithful to my wife. I developed a relationship with what started out as a dear, dear friend from Argentina,’ Mark Sanford said in a rambling and often emotional news conference at the state capital in Columbia. ‘I’m a bottom line kind of guy I’m just gonna lay it out.’ ‘It’s gonna hurt and I’m going to let the chips fall where they may,’ said Sanford, often touted as a potential 2012 presidential hopeful. Sanford apologized to his wife and his four children. ‘To Jenny, anybody who has observed her over the last 20 years of my life knows how closely she has stood by my side in campaign, after campaign, after campaign,’ he said. ‘I’ve let down a lot of people, and that’s the bottom line,’ he said.”

Maybe Sanford should have studied Bill Clinton’s tearful mea culpa after he got caught cheating on Hillary. The American people are suckers for a contrite politician. It sounds like Sanford isn’t willing to throw his mistress under the bus. The Politico article notes” “What I did was wrong, period,’ he said. ‘I spent the last five days crying in Argentina.’ ”Sanford is not only looking insincere; he’s apparently some over-emotional wussy basket case.

Beautiful. Just beautiful. At the most crucial point in this country’s history for two generations, when we are on the verge of an actual neo-Marxist, socialist takeover headed by an African dictator, our opposition party is run by a bunch of overgrown frat boys who can’t control themselves.
The members found used needles and other drug paraphernalia laying around so they busily cleaned up the area and received thanks from the local police. WELL DONE! Be Proud be NSM.

NSN MISSOURI ACTIVE ON THE STREETS

In June NSM Missouri were out on the Highways of Springfield removing trash where they participate in the Adopt-a-Highway Scheme. Not only were they out clearing the trash from our streets, but were also out demonstrating against the filth and depravity on our streets. On June 14th SS Lt Boswell and a large number of Unit members attended the Gay festival and showed their discussed and contempt for the parade.

E-mails from Stormtrooper Readers

This story is a few years old. But it's still affecting lives today.

I was a student a High School in Roxboro NC. In 2003 I was a freshman. I was raised to commemorate the south, by wearing the confederate flag. It was all about our heritage. One of the liberal idiot parents decided that it was offensive and the students wearing them were KKK members or Neo's. So they banned the confederate flag. After they banned it they went around the parking lot with duct tape and a screwdriver and if there was a window decal supporting white America or flying the flag they taped over it. If they had a Confederate flag licence plate, THEY REMOVED IT.

Isn't that a violation of our rights? Freedom of speech or Freedom of expression. They tried to suspend me for voicing my opinions and having Confederate flag stickers on my Crutches, but they never put it in the code of conduct. I fought for myself. I wouldn’t let them try to tell me that my heritage isn’t important.

Thought you would find that interesting. Kids are still being sent home, and it’s STILL not in the code of conduct.

From a former student.

East - West Divide

Nearly 20 years after the fall of the Berlin Wall, the social divide between eastern and western Germans is getting bigger than ever, according to one of the country’s leading experts on the subject.

Klaus Schroeder said, “The prejudices are not being reduced, but have become solidified and have in part even become greater.” And this is not only to be seen among those who experienced the days East and West Germany, he said. “The animosities are, in many families, being passed on to the younger generations,” he said. Both sides have prejudices about the other. “If you pick out the key elements of the reservations, the West Germans believe that the East Germans are permanently in a negative mood, that they whine a lot and cannot or will not really work. The East Germans think the West Germans – simply put – are egoistic, pushy and superficial.” He said the difficulty was the current political and economic debates make both sides feel justified in their preconceptions.

History is constantly being bent to fit the idea that things used to be better – in the west as well as in the east, he said. “West-nostalgia is now overtaking that for the east,” he said. “It is not popular to admit it in public, but many West Germans are now saying, “Before 1989, without the East Germans, it was better, we were doing better.” He said that a study conducted last year by the polling company Allensbach confirmed this. One of the roots of this problem is that the politicians had promised the West Germans that unification would not cost them any money, he suggested. “This was a central mistake.”

“They should have told the West Germans clearly at the time, “Unification will cost a lot of money – it is the result of the long years of division, and we have to show solidarity.” And the East Germans should have been told, “Things will get better for you quickly, but complete equality will take longer than one would like due to the different starting points.”
