20th April we celebrate the birthday of Adolf Hitler.

As we celebrate the Führer’s birthday we look back on his life and the benefits that we reap from the National Socialist dream and how we would all benefit if we were in power today. Adolf Hitler was born in a small town in Austria, but from that humble beginnings he grew into a great man who cared for his race and nation.

During the great war he volunteered and fought bravely for his country and won the Iron Cross 2nd class and 1st class. At the end of the war when he was demobilised he returned to Munich and soon witnessed a takeover bit by local communists who seized power before being ousted by the army. He soon joined the German Worker’s Party after being asked by the founder Anion Drexler. Hitler’s nationalist views began to take form and he gave many speeches which were a great success.

On 1st April 1920 he took over the party and the name was changed to the National Socialist German Workers Party (NSDAP). On 9th November 1923 the party lead by Adolf Hitler tried to take over the Bavarian Government but were caught up in a brief gunfight with the police and later was arrested and imprisoned in Landsberg prison.

It was while he was there that he dictated his thoughts and philosophies to his good friend Rudolf Hess which became the book “Mein Kampf”. After six months he was released but banned from making any speeches. Now we had the seeds of National Socialism which were soon to make Germany great.

The seeds are still growing and will give our race and nation a bright future. What are those seeds?

National Socialism is all encompassing, preserving our race, our culture, it deals with all aspects of political, religious, ideological, military, financial, social, resources. We would have free healthcare, We would have the right of self determination, the right to vote on State government and legislation only by citizens of the State. We, as Aryan Americans would have the rights to work, and food above all others. All citizens and have equal rights and duties regardless of class or station.

These are only some of the benefits which make me proud to call myself a National Socialist and, with you all, I look forward to the day that we are in power.

Finally words from Hitler 9th Nov 1921.

For us there are only two possibilities: either we remain German or we come under the thumb of the Jews. This latter must not occur; even if we are small, we are a force. A well-organized group can conquer a strong enemy. If you stick close together and keep bringing in new people, we will be victorious over the Jews. Heil Hitler
Guess who was Client-9.

This is one of those stories where you’d have to be living in a cave on Mars not to have seen it on the tube or in the papers. Everybody and his dog should be familiar with the details. New York’s Jewish governor Eliot Spitzer (a Democrat of course) held a press conference today announcing that he had been caught on tape with his trousers down by the FBI. Governor Spitzer’s wife (visibly in shock) was standing by his side at the podium while hubby sobbed and rent his garments at the shame of it all, but she didn’t say anything. She looked catatonic, with a thousand-yard stare, and I am convinced the poor woman had to be on some powerful anti-depressant. Talk about pure humiliation!

The Smoking Gun reports “New York Governor Eliot Spitzer has been implicated in a prostitution ring. The Democratic politician will now always be known as ‘Client-9,’ one of the johns described in a recently unsealed FBI affidavit detailing the operation of the Emperors Club, an international call girl ring. That document, an excerpt of which you’ll find below, describes hooker interactions with 10 johns, including one client who paid cash for a February 13 rendezvous at a Washington, D.C. hotel. The New York Times, which broke the Spitzer story, has identified the 48-year-old politician as Client-9.”

The middle of a Presidential primary when all eyes are on politicians, and he’s still philandering?! The Times also broke the story on John McCain and his favorite, blonde lobbyist. The New York Times must have a full time scandal department watching politicians. Smoking Gun “As described in the FBI document, Client-9 apparently went to great lengths to arrange the illicit Washington encounter, choosing to mail money in advance to the ring, instead of using a credit card. Client-9, whose conversations were recorded by an FBI wiretap, would not do ‘traditional wire transferring,’ the affidavit quotes one Emperors Club employee remarking. Additionally, the affidavit notes that after her appointment with Client-9 ended, ‘Kristen’ spoke with an Emperors Club booker, who said that she had been told that Client-9 ‘would ask you to do things that, like, you might not think were safe…’ ‘Kristen’ responded by saying, essentially, that she could handle guys like that.”

Okay, cutting to the chase, looks like Eliot was recorded in that Washington hotel room doing some really sick and twisted things with this hooker, the FBI got him on tape, and however much clout Spitzer thought he had with the Feds, apparently it wasn’t enough to hush it up. (Remember, the neocons are still in office and the FBI is still commanded by a Republican administration.) CBS is reporting that Spitzer will be resigning within 24 hours, so he must be into some really sick stuff and they must have him cold to get him to resign so quick, since politicians who get caught with their trousers down in recent years have developed a habit of fighting tooth and nail against losing their power and perks. Politicians have discovered that people have become so jaded and cynical about our Lords and Masters that they will just shrug off a sex scandal unless it’s something really, really grotty.

That character Mark Foley who was sending the Gay text messages to young male interns fled into seclusion in rehab and once the media lost interest, he tried to sneak back into the House of Representatives. He practically had to be physically dragged kicking and screaming out of the House by fellow Congressmen, and even that probably happened only because the 2006 elections were coming up. Senator Larry Craig from Idaho got arrested by an undercover cop in a public restroom in the Minneapolis airport for soliciting unnatural acts from total strangers, for God’s sake, pleaded guilty, and then just told the Senate and the whole world to get stuffed and refused to resign or admit he’d done anything wrong—and he’s still a Senator. (There was no election in 2007 so no pressure to clean out the garbage.) This latest scandal couldn’t have happened to a nicer guy. Remember, it was Spitzer who wanted to spit in the face of federal law and the entire American people and hand out drivers’ licenses to illegal aliens a while back.

Now, if the FBI can only videotape John McCain in some hotel bedroom, in bed with a dead woman or a live boy.

This Kentuckian is after your Freedom of Speech.

No, they haven’t given up. The bureaucrats and the politicians still want to take the Internet away from us. They still keep coming up with these little trial balloons here, there and everywhere, trying to nibble away at the corners of freedom of speech on the Net. One of these days, when we’re not looking, they’re going to slip something by us. The WTVQ web site reports: “Kentucky Representative Tim Couch filed a bill this week to make anonymous posting online illegal. The bill would require anyone who contributes to a website to register their real name, address and e-mail address with that site. Their full name would be used anytime a comment is posted. If the bill becomes law, the website operator would have to pay if someone was allowed to post anonymously on their site. The fine would be five hundred dollars for a first offense and one thousand dollars for each offense after that.”

WTVQ goes on: “Representative Couch says he filed the bill in hopes of cutting down on online bullying. He says that has especially been a problem in his Eastern Kentucky district.”

I’ll let you in on a little secret: Politicians don’t care if little Timmy or Sally is getting bullied on the Internet. What they do care about is criticism of the government or Israel (as if there’s much of a difference nowadays). They don’t want any anonymous whistle-blower telling the public about the latest government waste or torture scandal or lies.

Mr. Couch would have us think that all those Kentucky mountain folk apparently spend their time online “bullying” one another instead of their traditional pastimes of making moonshine and picking the banjo on the front porch. Parents used to teach their kids that “sticks and stones may break my bones, but names will never hurt me.” Kids need to grow up resilient enough to withstand name-calling and smears without a Nanny-State sticking its nose in to protect little Timmy’s feelings. The sooner a kid finds out that other people will smear him when his back is turned; the sooner he’ll learn an important lesson he’ll need for his adult life. Does Timmy think his “buddies” in college won’t spread rumors to steal a girl away from him or that cubicle trolls won’t lie about him behind his back to cheat him out of a promotion or pay raise? It’s a cruel world out there and you have to defend yourself from liars and backstabbers throughout your life.

Imagine how this Nanny-State law would work in practice: if anyone wanted to comment on a blog or a news article anywhere on the Internet in a politically incorrect manner, they would be required to give their personal information and subject themselves to retaliation from everybody from the government to the ADL to gang members, as well as permitting their information to be added to FBI and DHS databases as dissidents and potential “terrorists.” Remember—they can’t persecute someone until they identify them first. Today, right now, the only people with REAL free speech are the ones who post and write anonymously; otherwise the Jews and PC crowd would make these dissidents pay for their truthful remarks by getting them fired from their jobs—which is the real goal that these lickspittle politicians and their Jewish wire-pullers desire.

Ed. Why is this government and its representatives so intent on stripping us of our rights to free speech. A right that our forefathers fought and died for. They are very quick to criticize other countries who do such tyrannical deeds.

Our time is now

The National Socialist Movement will be marching in Washington on the April 19th 2008. We march against the illegal invasion of our beloved country “America “The Commander has asked that all patriotic American join us in protest. Be there for America!

Study says 1 in 4 teen girls in U.S. has sexual disease.

Chicago-At least one in four teenage American girls has a sexually transmitted disease, suggests a first-of-its-kind federal study that startled some adolescent-health experts.

Some doctors said the numbers might be a reflection of both abstinence-only sex education and teens’ of invulnerability. Because some sexually transmitted infections can cause infertility and cancer, U.S. health officials called for better screening, vaccination and prevention.

Only about half of the girls in the study acknowledged having sex. Some teens define sex as only intercourse, yet other types of intimate behaviour, including oral sex, can spread some diseases.

Among those who admitted having sex, the disease rate was even higher - 40 percent. Are we failing our children in sex education? It is our duty to teach and care for them.
Hooded gunmen 'ambush' police in Paris suburb sparking fears of new national riots by immigrants

Four French police officers were badly injured after being shot at by hooded youths on a Paris housing estate. The attack, which happened in the high rise Grigny estate on Sunday night, was described by Interior Minister Michele Alliot-Marie as an “ambush”. Police said that when the officers arrived they were confronted by "around 30 people whose faces were masked and several of whom were armed." Three officers were treated at the scene after being hit in the face by lead shot. A fourth was hospitalised with leg injuries caused by lead shot and nails.

Calm returned late last night after massive police reinforcements were sent to the neighbourhood. Mr Alliot-Marie called for the youths to be identified and face "exemplary sentences." Several dozen police officers were similarly wounded last November during three days of riots in the north Paris suburb of Villiers-le-Bel, raising fears of a repeat of nationwide unrest in 2005. Hundreds of French police, including special forces, raided Villiers-le-Bel last month, arresting and charging 19 suspected ringleaders of the violence, in one of the biggest operations of its kind ever staged in France. Tensions have run high in France's low-income suburbs since the riots of 2005, the country's worst civil unrest in decades.

President Nicolas Sarkozy last month launched an aid programme for the suburbs, which are home to high proportion of African immigrants and where youth unemployment runs at up to 40 percent. But the president also vowed a "war without mercy" against crime.

Holocaust reparations will be $170 million.

Brussels, Belgium. The Belgium government and banks agreed Tuesday to pay $170 million to holocaust survivors, families of victims and the Jewish community for their material losses during World War 2.

Campaigners welcomed the decision to compensate those whose property and goods in Belgium had been looted, it is alleged, by Nazi occupiers.

“In a certain way, justice has been done. Unfortunately, there are people who never came back” from the Nazi death camps said Eli Ringer, co-chairman of the committee on the restitution of Jewish assets.

Overall, $54 million will be paid to individual claimants, with the rest going to a Jewish trust that will help the poor and keep the memory of the horrors of the holocaust alive.

About 50,000 Jews lived in Belgium in the 1930s, and nearly half of them died, it is claimed, in the Holocaust.
Reinhard Eugen Tristan Heydrich was born in Halle near Leipzig on the 7th March 1904. Probably one of the most controversial members of the NSDAP, also much maligned by the, so called victors and the Jewish media ever since his premature death in 1942.

His family were very cultured as his father founded the Halle Conservatory of Music and was a Wagnerian opera singer while his mother was an accomplished pianist. This home life was very strict and he was raised with harsh discipline, because of this he became a very unhappy and withdrawn child. He was too young to serve in the forces in the first world war so, at 16, he joined the local Freikorps opposing the communist that were roaming the streets at that time. He was also influenced by the German Völk movement and learnt much about the treachery of the Jew and how they planned the downfall of the White race. He learnt of the achievements of the white race. At 18 he became a cadet in the elite German Navy where he stayed, raising to the rank of second Lieutenant and served at a Signals officer to Intelligence under Wilhelm Canaris. He resigned his naval commission in 1931 and his fiancé, Lina von Osten was an enthusiastic National Socialist party member and subjected that he should join and look into the SS organization.

This he did, and after an interview with the SS Reichsführer, Heinrich Himmler and he was offered a post and groomed to become the leader of the SS Intelligence gathering service known as the SD (sicherheitsdienst) the SS Secret Service. He quickly rose through the ranks to SS Brigadier General, he had not yet reached 30 years old. To The Führer, Adolf Hitler, he was a highly gifted and became extremely useful to the movement.

In 1933 he and Himmler arrested hundreds of communists and those that were a danger to the state and interned them into concentration camps. In 1934 Heinrich Himmler assumed control of the newly created Secret State Police with Reinhard Heydrich as his second in command where he was running the organisation. During this period the SA chief Ernst Röhm and several others were plotting against the Führer and planning a coup and a new revolution and bring down the government of the time. This would have gone completely against the will of the people who had voted for the NSDAP only a short time before. With the quick response from Himmler, Heydrich and Hermann Göring a tragedy was averted and law and order prevailed. Reinhard Heydrich was very much a family man who cared for his wife and children and spent as many hours as possible with them. As can be seen in these photos, he was very much adored by his children. He cared for their future as we care for our children.

As war raised it’s ugly head and Germany was forced into defending itself against the lies of freedoms enemies, he steadily rose in rank and position. In 1941 the Führer appointed him Deputy Reich Protector of Bohemia and Moravia in the former Czechoslovakia with its HQ in Prague.

Continues on next page.
On the morning of the 27th May 1942 whilst travelling to his office in central Prague a dissident Czech terrorist, who had been trained in England by the British, waited at a sharp corner knowing that SS Obergruppenführer Heydrich’s vehicle would have to slow down. The terrorist jumped out of the side of the road and shot Heydrich and then threw a bomb into the vehicle. The bomb exploded which wounded him. He jumped out of the car and drew his pistol shooting back at the terrorist before collapsing in the street. He later died on the 4th June 1942, a sad day for the Reich. A monument was erected at the point where the terrorist had struck, a sad waste of a man who had done so much for his Führer and country.

Reinhard Heydrich
A Man of true Honor and Loyalty

Where he led, we follow, bringing hope and freedom for our children.
Sieg Heil!
1st March saw the Commander attending the annual Book Burning ceremony in Lewisbury, Ohio, Thus continuing a party tradition. On the left is a Book Burning ceremony in Hamburg on the 13th May 1933. We all know the reasons for this ceremony which has become even more important now. With the price of printing books being so cheap the Jews are swamping our shops with pornographic books and literature. Attempting to pervert our youth with obscene articles. All the enemies of decency are lining up to do as much harm to our race as possible. Book Burning ceremonies are a means to cleanse our nation of this filth.

Of course, we are accused of burning real literature, classic books etc. and that we, National Socialist, are the evil beast killing the freedom to read and learn. Well it is not true, Book Burning ceremonies go back in history, long before National Socialism.

Have we forgotten the burning of Alexander’s great library. We also have pictures from the middle ages of book burnings in the 13th and 14th centuries. Here we have an 18th Century drawing of a book burning taking place in France, the word under the fire describes it all “Perversion”. I think that there would be a rush to join in the recipients of this last picture in the Burning of the Jewish book of Abraham.

So next time you attend such burnings, remember with pride at what you are doing. Cleansing our world of utter rubbish. Now that gasoline is becoming so expensive and we need to think of alternative fuels, perhaps we could invent cars that run on the burning of books. A little fire under the hood and you just stop at a filling station and ask for one hundred weight of books please. I am joking about the cars but book burning ceremonies are a serious thing and important to a true pure life. We must always think of our children before all others. A healthy body is not enough we must also have healthy minds. Sieg Heil.
